

New York, N.Y.

July 17th, 1909.

Dear Cousin Marrie:

So that I may recognize you with the least trouble, please make a bow of the inclosed ribbon and pin it on your waist.

I will be at the foot of the gangplank when you land.

I will wear a light gray suit with tan colored shoes and a white straw hat with a black band.

If by any possible chance I should miss you, please go to my brother's house at No. 460 West 20th Street, which is just a short walking distance from the pier where you will land.

However, I do not think we will have any trouble in recognizing each other.

I hope you had a pleasant trip.

Very sincerely,

James Johnston
